FORMAL OPENING OF CONVENTION TONIGHT

STATE BAPTISTS WILL HEAR ANNUAL REPORT OF STATE BOARD AT FORMAL OPENING OF CONVENTION.

MEETINGS HELD TODAY

Annual Meeting of Women's Missionary Society Held This Morning—Ministerial Union in Session This Afternoon.

The annual convention of the Wisconsin Baptists will be formally opened this evening and the report of the state board will be given and an address by E. P. Branch of Normal, Ill. Morning Meeting.

Over one hundred ladies were present at the largest and most interesting missionary meeting ever held in the city, this morning at the Methodist church. Following the re-election of the former officers the program was given as published, including talks by ladies from this state who are active in the line of work.

The feature of the morning was a report given by Mrs. F. S. Stewart of Minneapolis, field worker for Wisconsin, and the round table of best methods which she conducted. She brought out the fact that the women in their work should emphasize the Lordship of Jesus Christ. They should put the Lord first. "The passage, 'Lord what wilt thou have me do?' with emphasis on the 'thou' and 'me' expressed duty of the missionary. Moody decided to be a consecrated man and now the world is waiting to see who will be the great consecrated woman. There are three needs at present—consecrated leaders, more enthusiasm, and more prayer.

This afternoon at the Baptist church the Ministerial Union continued its meetings which closed at the end of the afternoon session. A very good program was given this morning, the main number being an address by Dr. Rowlands of Davenport, Iowa, on the Bible as related to efficient evangelism. During the afternoon session he gave another address on the Essentials of an Efficient Church.

Mrs. Hizon entertained the ministerial wives at a reception at her home this afternoon from three until five o'clock. This is a new feature of the convention which was originated this year.

This evening at 7:30 the Convention proper commences and after this the meetings will be for the entire number of delegates present, and open to all who care to attend. Among the noted speakers of the Convention will be Dr. H. A. Green of Chicago, Dean Shaffer Matthews of the University of Chicago Divinity School, and W. T. Stuckhouse, D. D., one of the speakers at the Baptist World Alliance which met recently at Philadelphia.

Baptists representing churches from all over the state attended the opening meeting of the State Convention which is under the management of the Ministerial Union until Tuesday evening when the State Convention proper begins. The session opened last night with a song service led by Rev. R. C. Merson, of Milwaukee. The Chicago branch of the Baptist Publication Society has kindly loaned three hundred song books for use during the Convention and these will be used exclusively at the sessions. Rev. J. C. Hizon extended a hearty welcome to the delegates, following a few words by Rev. W. A. Billings, of La Crosse, who presided over the meeting, in which he made mention of the fact that the first Baptist church of Janesville was one of the oldest in the state, and that this was the fifth Baptist State Convention which had been held here. E. E. Dresser, of Sheboygan, responded to the welcome in behalf of the visitors in the city. The work of the Baptist Ministers' Aid Society was represented by J. S. Boyden, D. D., of Kalamazoo, Mich., who has been in charge of the Home for Aged Ministers, a number of years, and an offering was taken up for the home which is situated at Fond du Lac. Following a selection by the choir, Rev. Henry Clarke, of Racine, delivered the annual sermon, taking as his text the keynote of the Convention—Efficiency. Rev. Clarke showed efficiency should be striven for in the preparation for the time to come. He brought out the fact that everything increases in its efficiency and that the things of today are soon out of date and are quickly superseded by the more efficient and more developed things of tomorrow.

Immediately after the Convention Board had finished its session this morning the annual meeting of the Baptist Women's Missionary Society of Wisconsin was held in the parlor of the Methodist church.

ANCIENT COIN WAS DEPOSITED IN BANK

United States Half Dollar Dating From 1817 Received in Deposit By Local Bank Teller.

What would prove to be a valuable addition to the specimens of any coin collector was received by Stanley Woodruff, teller at the Rock County National Bank, from a depositor this morning, in the shape of a fifty-cent piece, dating from 1817. The coin is in a remarkable state of preservation in spite of the fact that it is nearly a century old. It is the same shape as the present half-dollar and is marked with a 50c around the Goddess of Liberty around whom are fifteen stars. In place of the milling on the edge, as is seen at present, the words "Fifty cents for a half dollar" are plainly readable. The use of the coin was evidently unnoticed by the depositor.

THE AVIATOR PROVES TO BE CLEVER FARCE

Complications that Arise and Solution of the Problem Nicely Worked Out.

With Aviation and Aviators as the theme, James Montgomery's farce comedy, "The Aviator" was presented at the Myers Theatre last evening in a most clever manner by a capable company. The four acts went along smoothly, and of course, the hero wins out in the end after many trials and tribulations. In this day of aviation the play hits a popular chord and was well staged. The production, and nature of "The Aviator," goes into a week of trouble but finally emerges gracefully to win the girl of his choice. The various parts in the production were well taken and the appearance of a real monoplane on the stage gave the audience a thrill.

CLINTON MAN IS BADLY BITTEN BY A PET DOG

J. B. Smith Had His Hand Severely Torn by Canine—Other Clinton News.

[Special to the Gazette]

Clinton, Oct. 3.—J. B. Smith was badly bitten on the left hand yesterday afternoon by his son's pet dog. The dog, while in the country with Mr. Smith, got caught in a barb wire fence and could not free himself. Mr. Smith went to his rescue and while attempting to get him loose from the wire the dog, in his panic, turned on his benefactor and sank his teeth into his hand. Dr. W. O. Thielman cauterized the wounds and it is not thought any serious results will follow. It was necessary to cut the wire to release the dog and he was so badly injured it is thought he will have to be killed.

LINK AND PIN. NEW LINE ACROSS STATE COMPLETED

Northwestern Has Completed the Short Line From Minneapolis to Milwaukee.

According to the Wall Street Journal in a dispatch from Minneapolis, W. H. Gardner, president of Omaha and Northwestern roads, who is here, announced that the new line from Wyeville, Wis., to Milwaukee, will be opened for freight traffic November 1, and for passenger traffic later. The opening will mark the completion of one of the most important railroad construction plans of recent years relative to Minneapolis. Three tunnels have entered into the plan, and grades have been reduced from 1 1/2 per cent to 6.0 of 1 per cent into this work," said Mr. Gardner. "This includes the cost of the Milwaukee Belt Line. We have practically built a new line across Wisconsin, in which direction so much Minneapolis traffic moves. There are no plans in contemplation that call for drastic economies. While we always keep expenses down as close as possible, in proportion to business, and will continue that policy, I know of nothing in sight that might indicate the laying off of any important number of men. I am conservatively optimistic on present general business conditions."

NEW TICKETS ARE VERY CONVENIENT

New System of Tickets in Vogue on Chicago & Northwestern Very Handy.

Station Agent Butler of the Northwestern depot in this city received the new tickets yesterday which are a decided change from the old. The new system has been in use throughout the line but as the agents were compelled to get rid of the old style tickets before receiving the new, they were not put on sale here until this morning, and getting rid of the regular tickets consumed considerable time.

With the old style ticket, when purchased, which read to a station where more than one conductor would handle it, was merely punched by the conductor on the first run and handed back to the passenger. "In this way the conductor had no record of that ticket when he turned in his nightly report and it made it very hard for the officials to figure out the earnings of this train to an absolute certainty. The new style ticket will eliminate all uncertainties in regard to train earnings as the new ticket is just twice the length of the former one and very similar to a round trip ticket. On the additional space afforded is three stubs, exactly alike, with the name of the destination of the passenger printed thereon. When the conductor on the first run takes the ticket he merely retains stub number one, which is easily detached as they are perforated, and then hands the remainder back to the purchaser. When the passenger transfers to another train where there is, of course, a different conductor in charge he will remove stub number two, if the passenger travels beyond his run. If not, then he retains the entire ticket.

As an example of the use and the convenience of the new ticket we will give an example. For instance, you purchased a ticket here at the local station for Green Bay, the conductor on the train, which will only go to Fond du Lac, will detach the first stub on the ticket. After arriving in Fond du Lac and taking the through train for Green Bay, the conductor takes the remainder of the ticket. You can readily see that it is a great improvement over the old style as both conductors then have a record to show the number of passengers carried this morning when a traveling man, evidently having never purchased one of the new style tickets, purchased one for Elgin. The conductor, as usual, gave him back the ticket and after the passenger had looked at it he took it for granted that the ticket agent had sold him a round trip ticket. Without asking the conductor in regard to the matter he, at the first opportunity, telegraphed back to Janesville, stating that a mistake had been made in the sale of his ticket, that he had a round trip ticket and that he did not intend returning, and for the railroad company to refund half the price he paid for his ticket. After learning from the conductor, whom he afterwards asked in regard to the matter, he then saw the mistake had been made by himself and the affair was cleared up.

DECISION IN CASE INVOLVING MISSING CARROLL L. SMITH

Supreme Court Today Upholds Decision of Circuit Court in Famous Charivari Case in Which Smith Missing Carroll Smith Was Defendant.

With absolutely no knowledge as to the whereabouts of the defendant and appellant in the action in the case of George Palmer vs. Carroll L. Smith of Milton, which was appealed from the decision rendered in the circuit court to the supreme court, the state supreme court today rendered an opinion sustaining the decision of the circuit court in the matter which was argued before that body Sept. 15, last. This is the end of the famous charivari case which was brought into the circuit court for Rock county, Nov. 11, 1910. The case was brought by the plaintiff to secure damages for injury which was sustained from a ride bull-whipped indicted by the defendant in a charivari given in honor of the defendant and his wife several evenings after their wedding, June 10th, 1910.

In the trial in the circuit court, the jury awarded Palmer, who had sued for $5,000, $175 compensatory damages and $50 punitive damages. The case was appealed by the defendant April 18, last. Subsequent to the time of this appeal Smith disappeared from his home, the time being about the latter part of June.

Since that time no word has been heard by his wife, or brother or other relatives and friends living in Milton and the surrounding country or by his attorney, Chas. E. Pierce, of this city. His disappearance has been most mysterious and many theories have been advanced from suicide to insanity.

The more plausible cause of Smith's sudden departure from this locality is given as temporary insanity. It is stated by his wife, his attorney, and other relatives, that he had been worried over the charivari case and it is believed that continual brooding and misapprehension had led him to leave his home and this part of the country.

There are frequent cases on record of this character in which men have wandered away and have been found many miles from home in a state of insanity. The recent case of the man who was found near Janesville and whose home proved to be in the state of Washington is an actual case near at hand.

It is also pointed out that should this be the reason for the mysterious absence of Carroll Smith, it would be very nearly impossible to locate him through any organized methods, such as the police or a detective bureau. The attention of police officials is drawn only toward such people as they suspect to be criminals, with certain peculiarities, or a special look of cunning or wickedness.

Smith, however, was a well appearing man, under forty years of age and well dressed at the time of his disappearance in a gray suit of clothes. He was about five feet ten inches in height and of slender build. He carried a small amount of money and certain papers of value to himself which would disclose his identity if he were captured.

It is perfectly possible in cases of mental aberration of this kind that Smith would take up his residence in some distant place without arousing the curiosity of anyone. It is thus certain that if he left this section under the conditions which are most reasonably advanced he will not return except of his own accord, after the temporary insanity has passed away or until the facts of his case are accidentally exposed to persons where he may be staying.

METHODIST STANDARD BEARERS WERE VERY PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED.

The Standard Bearers of the M. E. church enjoyed a very pleasant evening at the home of Miss Ethel Richards, 1217 Ruger avenue, last evening. About thirty young ladies went in lay rack loads to attend the regular monthly meeting of the society. Reports were read by the officers of the society as to what had been accomplished during the year. This society is a new one, only having been organized about a year, and the reports that were read were very creditable. The time was then given to Miss Fanny Bennett, a returned missionary from India, who gave a very interesting talk on the work in India. Refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the evening and everyone reported a very enjoyable time.

HAD ANNUAL PIE SUPPER PAID FOR BY INITIATIVES

After their usual weekly program last evening the Forum Literary society of the high school adjourned to McDonald's restaurant where the six new members were permitted to stand treat to the old members in honor of their addition to the society. Madison, Wis.—At the University of Wisconsin optimism over the prospects of a strong 1911 aggregation, returns. Much of this is due to the confidence of local fans in the ability of the Badger's steam fitter captain, Alfred Bauer. In order to get in shape for the season, Bauer has been working at manual labor as steam fitter's apprentice throughout the hot summer months instead of idling his time away with the fair summer girl at the resort. POSTPONE RACE MEET UNTIL OCTOBER 11TH

Excessive Rains Have left the Track in Poor Condition for Holding Speed Contests This Week.

Owing to the fact that the excessive rains of the past few days have left the new track at the Park Association grounds in such condition that it would not be safe to start horses on it, the race meet, which was to have been held this week has been postponed until Wednesday, October 11th, at which date if the track is in fine condition, it will be held. Much interest has been displayed in the coming contest and the rivalry between the Beloit and Janesville horse owners will lead to some spirited contests.

JOLIET FEARS DAM BREAK

Large fissures in Retaining Walls at Lockport Cause Uneasiness.
Joliet, Ill., Oct. 3.—Apprehension is felt in this city that the Chicago drainage channel walls at Lockport may give way and cause a great disaster. Thomas H. Riley, former state representative, believes the greatest danger is from the possibility that the earth retaining walls of the channel at Sag and Willow Springs may break, because the Desplaines river is high at that point and its overflow empties into the channel. Joliet residents are greatly concerned over large cracks in the walls. The district has removed concrete in many places with the intention of refilling with cement.

DIXON FALLS TO HIS DEATH

Young Aviator Who Sailed Over the Rockies is Killed.
Spokane, Wash., Oct. 3.—Aviator Crawford Dixon, who flew across the Rocky mountains last Saturday, fell from a height of 100 feet at the interior state fair grounds here and received injuries which caused his death.
Caught by an adverse current of air, Dixon's machine turned on its side and plunged into a rocky railroad cut. While falling, Dixon pluckily attempted to right his aeroplane, and shouted to the spectators:
"Here I go! Here I go!"

JOHN LUND NOT MAN WANTED BY POLICE

Evansville Resident Arrested Here Last Night as Suspect in Madison Mystery Discharged This Morning by Direction of Detective Patrick Boyd.

John Lund of Evansville, arrested here last night by the local police as the suspect wanted at Madison in connection with the discovery of a mysterious flower found in the river there, was released this morning at the direction of Detective Patrick Boyd of that city who after seeing him declared he was not the man wanted. The names of the men are the same and they resemble one another in general appearance, but identity was distinctly disproved.

The local police, having received a description of Lund, the man wanted, and knowing that a man of that name lived at Evansville and came to this city frequently, kept a close lookout for him. Patrolman Morrissey found him on South River street shortly before nine o'clock, and according to the request of the Madison police to arrest him on sight, brought him to the police station where he was locked pending the arrival of Detective Boyd this morning.

Lund's court record strengthened the suspicion of the local police, that he was the man the Madison police were looking for. A little over a year ago, Lund and an accomplice held up a man in a taxi car just as the train was pulling into Evansville and after they had taken from him all that was of value, throw him off the moving train so that he would have difficulty in making an alarm. Both held-up men were caught. Lund was fined heavily and his partner was sent to state prison for two years.

Not quite two weeks ago Lund was arrested by Patrolman Morrissey who picked him up on the street where he was trying to sell a watch to obtain car fare. When his brother came to the police station a little later and seemingly explained the possession of the watch he was released. Especial suspicion attached to Lund because it was just about the time he tried to sell the watch that the flower was found in the Yahara river at Madison.

John O'Brien of Whitewater was brought before Judge Fifeid this morning on the charge of being found intoxicated on Academy street. He pleaded guilty and being unable to pay his fine of $2 and costs was sentenced to five days in jail.

PURITY BUTTER

Its Purity is Absolutely Secured

Madam, be reasonable.

You know that unprotected butter absorbs the odor and taste of anything with which it comes in contact.

Even in your own clean refrigerator you have to be careful not to put your butter near vegetables or other food.

Just think what it must be exposed to in the open tub—dust, dirt, germs, and ill odors.

Don't you think this is reason enough for you to order Purity Butter—in its perfectly protecting package?

Purity Butter is churned from pure, rich cream—pasteurized to make positive its purity and cleanliness.

Then, fresh and fragrant from the churn, it is packed so it reaches you without harm or change.

All good grocers sell Purity Butter in the regular pound packages.

Be sure to put Purity Butter on your next grocery list—let the family try it—they know they will prefer it to any other.

The genuine comes in the yellow package—34c per lb. Costs more, but worth it.

Fruit as an Article of Diet.

If you want to improve your health this winter or keep it up to par, add a generous quantity of fruit to your diet, and note results. Instead of spending money for medicine, particularly of a laxative nature, spend it for fruit. Fruit is more palatable than medicine, and far more beneficial.

If the business man or woman who suffers from a tired, languid feeling after lunch will drink a little pure grape juice, eat an apple or some fruit rich in fruit sugar, it will prove the best kind of "bracer" he can take. There are good reasons based on chemical laws back of the eating of fruit to show why it is beneficial. But notwithstanding these indisputable facts, many neglect this delicious aid to digestion, and pass by the fruit-stand for the drug-shop.

Lavulose, or fruit-sugar, is starch in such a state of digestion that it can be almost instantly absorbed by the body. Starch is an energy-producing food. Thus when you eat fruit rich in fruit-sugar, you are energizing yourself in one of the quickest ways. And it is real energy, not the false energy of intoxicants, for you are getting real food.

Also, fruit acids are inimical to germs. So that in plentifully eating fruit, you are keeping the alimentary tract pure and healthful.

Fruits, also, though they do not have a high nutritive value as regards muscle-building tissue, contain certain salts and solvents very necessary to the well-being of the body. Fruit is the best way to introduce these acids into the system, and surely the most palatable way.

The fact that some fruits do not seem to agree with one is probably due to the fact that they are not properly masticated. Fruit needs to be chewed quite as much as other food. But because it is soft and juicy, it frequently is scarcely chewed at all. Hence it often proves indigestible. This is frequently true of apples. Many say they cannot eat apples. But if they would thoroughly chew the apple-pulp they would probably have no digestive disagreement with it whatever.

Fruit, too, needs to be properly ripened in order to be most digestible. It should be neither under-ripe nor over-ripe. These conditions sometimes cause it to disagree with people, when the properly ripened fruit would cause no trouble whatever. Fruit from tropical countries that is picked green is not so palatable nor so digestible as fruit that is ripened on the trees. But of course in some fruits, this is almost unavoidable. Only, one should not condemn all fruit, because some, which is not, in one sense what it should be, disagrees with one.

The dried cherry, the date, the dried fig, the prune and the raisin are highest in all round food value. But even those in which water is the chief ingredient are valuable. For as has been said, these fruit juices, though they may not be nutritive, as meat and grain are, have other elements most essential to the human system. And the one who eats liberally of fruit, will find himself in many ways much better off physically than when fruit was but a small part of his diet.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHEN your babies ask you to let them blow soap bubbles, what do you answer?

Do you say, "Oh, dear, I hate to have you, because you mess things up so and get yourself all wet?"

Or do you go with willing alacrity and get the clay pipes down from the pantry shelf and fill the basin with nice soapy water.

According to the latest discoveries of health experts that is what you should do.

Say, more than that.

If the babies forget to ask to blow soap bubbles you should instill the desire into them, just as often as you possibly can.

For what do you think? Blowing soap bubbles has been discovered to be a splendid lung developer.

At one of the largest tuberculosis camps in the world, the doctors have given their patients orders to blow soap bubbles an hour every day. At a certain time in the morning all the patients are seen starting out with their clay pipes and their basins.

So if you want your children to have fine, healthy lungs you must encourage them in blowing "bubbles soft and fine" as often as possible.

From what I remember of my own delight in the beautiful iridescent things and the fun of competing as to who could blow the biggest, or the one which would last the longest, it seems to me that shouldn't be a very difficult task.

I wonder if there is a family in which the necessity of putting to death some family pet or stray cat or dog does not occasionally arise.

Probably not.

Wherefore, I am going to pass on a little receipt for doing this unpleasant task as kindly as possible, which the cat specialist whom I quoted the other day is anxious to have made public:

"We have arranged a method of putting cats to sleep" in such a way that they actually go to sleep without a struggle and without suffering.

"We believe that cats need air to die, as well as to live, so we put a little chloroform on cotton and let the cat inhale it. By the way, this is usually done at night when the cat has had a full meal and is ready for sleep. Contrary to the universal opinion cats will sleep at night if trained that way.

So we give it a very little chloroform, and the cat inhales it so gradually that it does not notice it—if good judgment is used in the giving. Then the cat lies down and goes ready to sleep, and we give it a little more of the vapor. Soon we hear labored breathing from the unconscious cat, and we put a generous amount of chloroform on cotton, throw it in and close the box.

The heart action stops very gradually this way. The little body shows that there has been no suffering but that death simply comes while the body sleeps.

Surely any animal lover will appreciate the value of this specialist's instruction.

Thought for Today

BY MRS. ROBERT M. LAPOLETTE.

POISE.

BLISS CARMEN, in a poem, "To Winged Victory," speaks of the "splendid poise of one who triumphs without noise," of the "power without strain," of the "calm the years cannot deface," or the something expressed in this great work of art that is an attribute of the eternal; something quite beyond definition, yet that we recognize instinctively in personality.

There are those whom nature has endowed with this great gift. Their very presence gives added peace to the world. Blessed are the mothers who bring comfort and repose instead of fretful irritation to their homes. Blessed are the teachers who do not nag and frighten and goad, who encourage, strengthen, and help to unfold.

In one of his sonorous Henry Drummond talks of two painters, each of whom tried to express an ideal of rest. One pictured a lonely lake among the mountains; the other a bird in its nest, far out on the slender branch of a birch tree overhanging a roaring cataract. I do not agree with him when he calls the picture of the lonely lake, stagnation. If some of us did not find peace in isolation, whence would come the inhabitants of the lonely places, those who live upon the farms, the pioneers? It is well that this kind of rest has its appeal and its message.

But we must agree that for the most part it is the repose of that bird in its nest we should hold for an ideal, if we would attain real spiritual poise in these days of nervous strain; an inner calm that makes us free from distraction in the very midst of it.

Favor Death Penalty.

In the interest of a "sane" Fourth of July a Chicagoan has invented an instrument to produce noise by burning paper between the mouth of a rubber bulb and a perforated handle.

A popular vote on the question, "Are you in favor of the death penalty?" conducted by a Parliarian paper, resulted three to one in favor of "Yes."

There is no cure, but rather a corollary. For things that are not to be remedied. —Shakespeare.

THE FALL MUSHROOMS.

During September and up to the time that the frost appears, mushrooms grow in abundance. "If you look you may find where they grow." The delicious field mushroom, by name agaricus campestris, is found in profusion in old pastures. If the mushrooms are gathered early in the day, and before they show their gills (while they are yet in the button stage), they may be kept for winter use by boiling in a strong salt brine and putting them in fruit jars; cover with the brine and add a tablespoonful of salt to each jar before sealing.

When wanted for use, soak in clear water until sufficiently freshened, then cook as desired. A few jars of this delicious vegetable would not only give variety to the winter table but save much in the purse to purchase delicacies not local.

There is no dish more delicious than creamed mushrooms, and to be able to serve a company with this appetizing dainty in midwinter and not suffer financially is worth while. Many amateurs are raising the mushroom in old cellars, but it takes great care to keep the temperature just right, so that few make a success at it.

Mushroom Salad.—Parboil the mushrooms in a little water five minutes, drain well and when chilled add an equal portion of celery and dress with mayonnaise.

Creamed Mushrooms.—Peel and trim a pint of mushroom caps and stems and put in a saucepan with a tablespoonful of butter; cook five minutes, dust with a tablespoonful of flour, pepper and salt, and pour over a cup of cream. When smooth and thick pour over well-buttered toast and serve at once.

Broiled Mushrooms.—Wash the caps, upside down on a broiler for the first half of the broiling, then reverse and fill the cap with butter, pepper and salt, and serve as soon as the butter is melted. They will need to be handled carefully, not to lose the juices.

FOR THE BUSY DAYS

LUNCHEONS THAT ARE QUICKLY AND EASILY PREPARED.

Three Simple Yet Appetizing Menus. That the Housewife Will Be Quick to See the Value of When She Is Sewing.

Menu: Asparagus on toast, hot tea biscuit, marmalade and tea.

Use canned asparagus tips. Drain them with cold water the moment the can is opened; drain thoroughly in a colander and warm in a double boiler; put in a little butter during the warming and season to taste. Make a hard toast of white bread, butter the slices, and put the asparagus on top; set the dish on a far part of the stove to keep warm while the other things are arranged. Get the baker's tea biscuit of the evening before and rewarm them in the oven, first brushing over the tops with a little milk. There is an American marmalade—orange, of course—that sells at 17 cents a jar. It is delicious.

Menu: Stewed kidneys and rice, raw tomatoes and chocolate celery and coffee.

The main dish can be warmed up to advantage, so it can be made the day before. Ask the butcher for a fresh veal kidney, or six or eight fresh lamb kidneys. Skin them and soak in ice water and salt for ten minutes. Cut them in half-inch pieces, or smaller if liked, and put them on in a cup and a half of water to stew. If the kidneys are not from a well-nourished animal less water will be required, as this absorbs the substance. Cook two slices of onion with them and then salt and pepper, letting them get perfectly tender yet not mushy. Cook a cupful of rice in a quart of water and when half done drain it through a colander, put it in a saucepan, set it on the back of the stove, and let it steam half an hour more. On the sewing day rewarm the kidneys in a little butter, and steam the rice until the grains are separated; serve them on the same dish. The celery cost three cents apiece.

Menu: Baked beans, Boston brown bread and cocoa.

The canned beans prepared with sugar and tomatoes are fine for this luncheon, while the little five and ten-cent cones of brown bread sold by the baker can be made to take the place of the home-made article.

Put the closed bean can in one double boiler, and the bread in another, and let them both get steaming hot. Serve on piping hot plates, and if possible provide a sweet butter for the bread. For a single person, this luncheon, which is the most substantial that can be had, will cost just 12 cents—five for the beans, five for bread and two for cocoa.

Roast Wild Goose. Wash in at least three waters; rub inside a tablespoon of soda; let stand two hours. To make a dressing use the inside of a loaf of bread and the crusts dried in the oven until they can be rolled. Season with Worcestershire, tabasco, paprika, black pepper and salt; put through grinder small carrot, green pepper, three pieces of celery, parsley, four medium sized onions; mix with crumbs, add sage, thyme and beaten egg. Fill goose. Put strips of pork on top, baste with Madeira wine and roast one and a half hours.

Creamed Shrimp. Make a rich cream sauce after any good recipe, and add to it a pint of pickled cold boiled shrimp, broken in halves. Before using the shrimp let them stand one hour in the juice of a whole lemon, juice of one onion, a wineglass of sherry, pepper and salt. When ready, let them drain for ten minutes, then add them to the cream sauce. Serve them with toast squares that have been sprinkled with grated cheese, pepper and salt, and heated hot in the oven.

Bread Cake. Take one cup of loaf dough, two cups of sugar, one cup of butter, three eggs, one teaspoon of soda, two tablespoons of sweet milk, half a cup of currants, half teaspoon of nutmeg and half a teaspoon of cloves. Beat the yolks of the eggs very light; cream butter and sugar; add spice, milk, soda and dough; stir all until well mixed, put in the beaten whites and the fruit lastly. Beat the mixture five minutes; let raise 20 minutes and then bake it.

Gelatin Dessert. A nice dessert is made with gelatin flavored with wine, cut in layers with slices of sponge cake and a sauce made of raw egg well beaten, added to cream of equal quantity and well flavored with wine or brandy.

Courage and Duty. To be strong in dull and dreary duty is almost the hardest task a man can face. It is a noble thing to be brave in tragic moments, but perhaps there is something even nobler than that. It is to be brave and glad, and strong, and tender when the sky is gray and when the road is dreary.—George H. Morrison.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

Knew the Story.
A story is told by a French paper of two provincials, a man and his wife, who visited the Louvre, in Paris.

"What struck you most at the Louvre?" asked one of their friends when they returned home and began to tell of the wonders they had seen.

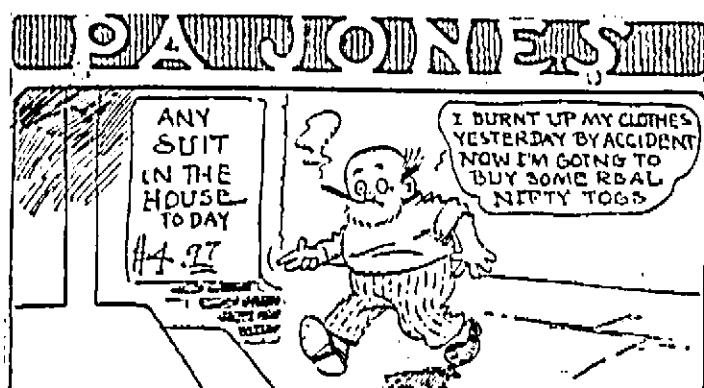

"Oh," replied the husband, "a picture which represented Adam and Eve, with the apple and serpent."

And his excellent wife chimed in: "Yes, we found that very interesting, because, you know, we knew the anecdote."

"Was that dog all right?"
"Yes—regular O. K. mine."

Not Hard to Believe.
A certain lady called up her grocer by telephone the other morning and, after she had sufficiently scolded the man who responded, said:
"And, what's more, the next order you get from me will be the last I'll ever give you."

"It probably will, madam," said the voice at the other end of the wire; "you are talking to an undertaker."

TAX BUDGET LEVIED BY COMMON COUNCIL SHOWS AN INCREASE

IN SPITE OF EFFORT OF ALDERMEN TO KEEP FIGURE DOWN NECESSARY INCREASE IS NEAR $20,000.

SOME MINOR MATTERS

Were Amicably Considered Last Evening—Communications From Maxfield and Nolan Read—Lighting Proposal Turned Down—Street Matters.

Determining the amount of money to be allocated to the various funds the total of which goes to make up the tax budget for the city for the coming year, was the matter of paramount importance at the meeting of the common council last evening, and in spite of the fact that the aldermen were anxious in almost every instance to keep the levy down, the increase over last year amounts to nearly $20,000, the levy this year being $154,533.95 against $135,568.05 last year.

The principal items of increase were in the fire and water fund, $11,000 over last year which increase was largely due to the new schedule of water rates which must be paid by the city; nearly $5,000 in the bonded debt fund, due to the cost of building two new bridges across Rock river; $1,000 in the school fund for needed improvements in the high school; $1,000 in the general fund; and an increase of $1,000 for the third ward and $500 for the fourth ward.

In a recess of over an hour the members of the council debated and discussed the amount of money to be appropriated for the various purposes, in an endeavor to keep the levy as low as possible for the taxpayers and at the same time permit the necessary amount of expenditure for the various purposes.

Increase For Schools.
Among these questions of increasing the amount was that of schools, the board of education asking for an increased appropriation, asking for $2,000 more, or a total of $22,000 for this year, while the council was disposed to keep the figures where it was. The board of education appeared in the council chamber and during the recess presented its case, the various members giving the reasons for the proposed increase.

S. M. Smith pointed out that the new law, which provided for the teaching of physical training to the young lady students of the high school necessitated an additional amount of equipment, including the installing of ten shower baths and the fitting of a room to be used for dressing and bath purposes. Supt. H. C. Buell also pointed out that there had been changes in the quarters of the commercial and domestic science departments of the school to accommodate increased elections in this course on the part of the pupils. He also reviewed briefly the expense involved in the operating of the Janesville schools, showing that they had been run at a minimum cost to the taxpayers for the benefits received, and compared favorably with other cities in the state. Other members of the board voiced their opinions, all favoring the increased appropriation.

The members of the council remained divided on the matter of the increase, Aldermen Donahue, Dulin, Connel, Shurtliff, and Spolin favoring $12,000 and Aldermen Buckholz, Sheridan, Evans, Hall and Schmidley favoring $10,000. A compromise was finally reached placing the appropriation at $11,000.

For Fire Police.
The matter of an appropriation for the fire police also came before the council which caused considerable discussion as to the value of this organization to the city and whether they were under the order of the chief of the fire department. It was finally determined to appropriate $1,000 for the payment of the driver of the fire police patrol and other items of expense, which was passed by the council by a vote of 7 to 3, several of those voting in the negative retaining the privilege to vote in favor as soon as it was determined that the driver of the patrol came directly under the orders of the fire chief at all times.

Communications Received.
Alderman Evans, chairman of the judiciary committee, submitted to the council two communications, one from City Attorney Harry L. Maxfield and another from Thomas S. Nolan. Both of these were read and ordered placed on file. Maxfield's communication was in the form of an objection to the employment of Attorney Thomas S. Nolan by the common council to assist in the Center avenue litigation case. The City Attorney stated that he would not work with Mr. Nolan and gave as reason that he doubted his integrity, giving instances in which he alleged that Mr. Nolan had not been upright in his dealings.

Mr. Nolan in his communication treated various points at issue between him and the City Attorney in various matters. He wrote in part as follows:
ADD TAX BUDGET LEVIED.....
"I did not know that the common council contemplated hiring me to assist him in the Center avenue litigation. You know that I did not solicit the retainer."

"He states (city attorney) that I sought a retainer from the common council in the matters instituted by him before the railroad Commission of Wisconsin; that he is informed I drew an order to the effect that I be retained and paid the sum of $2,500 for advising the city ordinances, and requested an alderman to introduce it and urge its passage in the common council."
"I claim none of these statements are true. This makes an issue between Mr. Maxfield and myself, which may easily be decided. Your honorable body will meet this evening. He should attend the session as city attorney. Representatives of both newspapers will also be present. If Mr. Maxfield told the truth in his article, the aldermen whom he claims I solicited for a retainer in the city litigation before the courts and railroad Commission, and the alderman whom he reliably informed I asked to introduce the order authorizing my employment to revise the city ordinances for a compensation of $2,500, will undoubtedly be pleased to expose me. It seems to me that all Mr. Maxfield has to do is to ask the members of the common council questions, and his statements about me in relation to these matters, if he is telling the truth, will be substantiated. Please note that he will not adopt this suggestion."

Regarding Integrity.
"Mr. Maxfield has questioned my personal and professional integrity. He is not specific, however. It is hardly necessary to state that I was born in Janesville. Since my birth, with the exception of a few years, I have lived here. Everybody knows me and my history. My reputation is made. Nothing that Mr. Maxfield has said will detract from it; nothing that I may urge in defense will aid it. Therefore, unless he specifies some act of mine which is dishonest or unprofessional, I feel that I should pay no attention to his insinuations."

"Referring to the Center avenue litigation, I wish to state that I will be very pleased to work for the city if I have control of the action. I do not desire, however, to be retained as an assistant to Mr. Maxfield. I could not assist him. I know of no lawyer who can. You have the authority, under the law, to authorize the proper committee to hire any lawyer you may select to have charge of any litigation in which the city may be interested."

Lighting Matter.
At the time for the report for the lighting committee Donahue again introduced the order approving the system of ornamental street lighting on the main streets of the city as proposed by the Industrial and Commercial Club, and moved its adoption. However, it developed that the council had failed to make any appropriation for this system as it would cost the city $3,000 additional to the amount set aside, and $15,000 had previously been named as the sum for lighting and just passed with the budget for the coming year. Consequently the order was defeated by a vote of 3 to 7.

Street Improvements.
Various orders were introduced regarding street improvement. Alderman Evans introduced an order for the opening of Elizabeth street, between Chatham and Palm streets. This was adopted and necessary steps will be taken. Orders for cement and brick gutters were passed as follows:
Brick gutters on the south side of Dodge street between South Franklin and Academy streets.
Cement gutter on the east side of High street from Wall to C. and N. W. tracks.

Brick gutter on the south side of Pleasant street from River to High street.
Cement curb on Palm street from West Bluff to Ravine street.
Brick gutter on north side of Pleasant street from Jackson to Jlich street.

An order was passed to place sign boards at the intersection of South Main street and Belmont avenue to indicate the Beloit and Delavan roads. It was ordered to change the name of Garland avenue to Garland avenue in order to make it possible to use the new street sign which had been made with the latter name. As there was only one person with a residence on this street it was thought that this would not meet with objection.

Other Business.
Among other business transacted the usual amount of bills were allowed; the reports of the board of education, library board, fire chief, chief of police, municipal court, were received and placed on file.

Wm. Bugas was awarded the contract for furnishing the city with coal. Adjournment was taken shortly after eleven o'clock.

Daily Thought.
"Serving God" is doing good to man; but praying is thought to be an easier "service," and therefore is more generally chosen.—B. Franklin.

Little Known of Cliff-Dwellers.
The history and the habits of the cliff-dwellers is nearly lost in the obscurity of ages. The existent tribes know very little of these ancients, who possibly were co-existent with the children of Israel, and may have been living in stone houses and have enjoyed a real civilization when our ancestors were running about in the skins of wild beasts caves for habitations.

Boy's Best Preceptor.
The finest moral preceptor a father can have is his own father, when that father is worthy of the name, and only the very gravest reasons can justify sending a child from home before he has reached the age of at least fourteen years.

Other Fish to Fry.
"Macna, here's a man at the door with a parcel for you." "What is it, Bridget?" "It's a fish, macna, and it's marked C. O. D." "Then make the man take it straight back to the dealer. I ordered trout."

Newspaper Advertisement Points Way to Health

I can truthfully say that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a very good medicine, not alone for kidney trouble, but also for weak and sore back, as well as for rheumatism.

About a year ago I became ill and unable to work, my trouble being a lame back. I read of your Swamp-Root in the newspaper and in an Almanac. Believing it would do me good, I went to my drugist, Mr. Skinner, and purchased a bottle. Finding relief in one fifty-cent bottle, I purchased several more and in a short time was able to continue with my work and am today feeling well and strong. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it is as good a medicine as can be found.

No Place for Economy.
Don't economize in love. It's the one treasure that grows bigger the more you take from it, the one valuable thing in which it pays to be a spendthrift. Give it away, throw it away, splash it over, empty your pockets, and tomorrow you'll have more than ever.

Deaths from accidents among seamen number 63 per 10,000, five times higher than in "dangerous" occupations.

Foley's Kidney Remedy vs. a Hopeless Case.
Hon. Ark. J. E. Freeman says: "I had a severe case of kidney trouble and could not work and my case seemed hopeless. I used several well known kidney remedies, and had the services of a doctor all of which gave me no relief. One large bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured me and I have never been bothered since. I have also recommended it to my friends who all received the same good results." Badger Drug Co.

Dan liked best at Orenda Park his chin-chins with Gordon Galorey. The young man was unflatteringly frank in his choice of companions. When the duchess looked about for him to ride with her, walk with her, to find the secluded corners, to talk, to play with him, she was likely to discover Dan had gone off with Lord Galorey, and to come upon them later, sitting enveloped in smoke, a stand of drinks by their side.

To Galorey, who had no heir or child, the boy's presence proved the happiest thing that had come to him for a long time. He talked a great deal to Dan about the old man. Galorey was poor, and the fact of a fortune of ten million pounds possessed by this boy was continually before his mind like an obsession. It was like looking down into a gold mine. Galorey tried often to breach the subject of money, but Dan kept off. At length Galorey asked boldly:

"What are you going to do with it?" On this occasion they were walking over from the lower park back to the house, a couple of terraces at their heels.

"Do with what?" Blair asked innocently. He was looking at the trees. He was comparing their grayish green trunks and their foliage with the California redwoods. A little taken aback, Lord Galorey laughed.

"Why, that colossal fortune of yours."

And Blair answered unhesitatingly: "Oh, spend it on some girl sooner or later."

Galorey fairly staggered. Then he took it humorously.

"My dear chap, I never saw a sweeter, bigger man than your father. If he had been my father, I dare say I might have pulled off a different yard of hemp, but I must confess that I think he has left you too much money."

"Well, there are a lot of fellows who are ready to look after it for me," Blair answered coolly. Before his companion could retort, he continued: "You see, dad took care of me for twenty-one years all right, and whenever I am up a stump, why all I have to do is to remember the things he did."

For the first time since his arrival at Orenda Dan's tone was serious. Interested as he was in the older man, Dan's inclination was to evade the discussion of serious subjects. With Blair's slang, his conversation was almost incomprehensible.

"Dad didn't gas much," the boy said, "but I could draw a map of some of the things he did say. He used to say he made his money out of the earth."

The two were walking side by side across the rich velvet of the immemorial English turf. The extreme softness of the autumn day, its shifting lights, its mellow envelope, the beauty of the park—the age, the stability, the harmony, served to touch the young fellow's spirits. At any rate there was a ring in him, an equilibrium that surprised Galorey.

"Most things," said said to me, "go back to the earth." He struck the English turf with his stick. "Dad said a fellow had better buy those things that stay above the ground." Dan smiled frankly at his companion. "Curious thing to say, wasn't it?" he reflected. "I remembered it, and I got to wondering after I saw him buried, 'what are the things that stay above the ground?' The old man never gave me another talk like that."

After a few seconds Galorey put in: "But, my dear chap, you did give me a shock up there just now when you said you were going to spend 'all your money on some girl.'"

The millionaire took a chestnut from his pocket. He held it high above his head and the little dog that had been yelping at his heels fixed his eyes on it. Blair noticed it, then threw it as far as he could. It sped through the air and the terrier ran like mad across the park.

"I like girls awfully, Gordon, and when I find the right one, why, then I'm going to feel what a bully thing it is to be rich."

Lord Galorey groaned aloud.

"My dear chap!" he exclaimed.

The spell of the day, the fragrant beauty of the time and place and hour were clearly upon Dan Blair. Lord Galorey was sympathetic to him. The terrier came tearing back with the chestnut held between his thick jaws. Dan bent down to take the nut from the dog and wrestled with him kindly.

"Swoll little grip he's got. Nice old pup! Let it go now!" And he threw the nut far again, and as the terrier ran once more Blair thrust his hands down in his pockets and began softly to whistle the tune of Mandalay.

He said slowly, going back to his subject: "It must be great to feel that a fellow can give her jewels like the Duchess of Breckwater's, ropes of 'em!"—he nodded toward the house—"and a fine old place like this now, and motors and yachts and all kinds of stuff."

His eyes rested on the suave lines of the Elizabethan house, with its softened gables and its banked terrace.

The Duchess of Breckwater appeared.

Possibly his vivid imagination pictured "some nice girl" there waiting, as they should come up, to meet him.

"I have always thought it would be bully to find a poor girl—pretty as a peach, of course—one who had never had much, and just cover her with things. Hey, there!" he cried to the terrier, who had come running back, "bring it to me."

They had come up to the terrace by this, and Dan's confidence, fresh as a gush of water from a rock, had ceased. His face was placid. He didn't realize what he had said.

From out of one of the long windows, dressed in a sable coat, her small head tied up in a motor scarf, the Duchess of Breckwater appeared. She greeted them severely, and Lord Galorey heard her say under her breath to Dan:

"You promised to be back to drive with me before dinner, Dan. Did you forget?"

And as Galorey left the boy to make his peace, the first smile of amusement broke over his face. He felt that the duchess had broken her and her capture of Dan Blair's heart the old picture of some "nice girl"—not much perhaps, but it might be very hard to tear away the picture of the ideal that was ever before the blue eyes of this man who had a fortune to spend on her!

CHAPTER II.

The Duchess Approves. His attentions to the Duchess of Breckwater had not been so conspicuous or so absorbing as to prevent the eager mothers—who, true to her word, Lady Galorey had invited down—from laying siege to Dan Blair. Lady Galorey asked him:

"Don't you want to marry any one of these beauties, Dan?" And Blair, with his beautiful smile and what Lily called his inspired candor, answered:

"Not on your life, Lady Galorey!"

And she agreed: "I think myself you are too young."

"No," Dan replied, "you are wrong there. I shall marry as fast as I can."

His hostess was surprised.

"Why, I thought you wanted your fling first."

And Dan, from his chair, in which, with a book, he had been sitting when Lady Galorey found him, answered cheerfully:

"Oh, I don't like being alone. I want to go about with some one. I should like a fling all right, but I want to fling with somebody as I go."

The lady of the house was not a philosopher nor an analyst. She had certain affairs of her own and was engaged in them and lived in them. As far as Lady Galorey was concerned the rest of the world might go and hang itself as long as it didn't do it at her gate-post. But Blair couldn't leave any one indifferent to him very long, not unless one could be indifferent to a blaze of sunlight; one must either draw the blinds down or bask in its brightness.

She laughed. "You're perfectly delicious! You mean to say you want to be married at once and let your wife fling around with you?"

"Just that."

"How sweet of you, Dan! And you won't marry one of these girls here?"

"Don't fill the bill, Lady Galorey."

"Oh, you have a sweetheart at home, then?"

"All off!" he assured her blithely, and rose, tall and straight and slender.

The Duchess of Breckwater had come in, indeed she never failed to when there was any question of finding Blair.

Dan stood straightly before the two women of an old race, and the American didn't suggest any line of noble ancestors whatsoever. His features were rather conglomerate; his muscles were possibly not the perfect elastic specimens that were those muscles whose strain and show had been made from the same stock for generations. He was, nevertheless, very good to look on. Any woman would have thought so, and he bent his blond head as he looked at the Duchess of Breckwater with something like benevolence, something of his father's kindness in his clear blue eyes.

Neither of the noble ladies vaguely understood him. His hostess thought him "a good sort," not half bad, a splendid catch, and the other woman, only a few years his senior, was in love with him. The duchess had married at twenty, and found herself a widow at twenty-five. She held a telegram in her hand.

"We've got the box for Mandalay to-night at the Galety, and let's motor in."

Only Lady Galorey hesitated, disappointed.

"Too bad—I had specially arranged for Lady Grandcourt to drive over with Ellice. I thought it would be a ripping chance for her to see Dan."

When at length the duchess had succeeded in getting Dan to herself toward the end of the day in the red room, after tea, she said:

"So you won't marry a London beauty?"

And rather coldly Dan had answered:

"Why, you talk, all of you, as if I had only to ask any girl of them, and she would jump down my throat."

"Don't try it," the duchess answered, "unless you want to have your mouth full!"

Dan did not reply for a second, but he looked at her more seriously, conscious of her grace and her good looks. She was certainly better to look at than the simple girls with their big hands, small wits, long faces and, as the boy expressed it, "utter lack of get-up." The duchess shone out to advantage.

"Why don't you talk to me?" she asked softly. "You know you would rather talk to me than the others."

"Yes," he said frankly; "they make me nervous."

"And I don't?"

"No," he said, "I learn a lot every time we are together."

"Learn?" she repeated, not particularly flattered by this. "What sort of things?"

"Oh, about the whole business," he returned vaguely. "You know what I mean."

"Then," she said with a slight laugh, "you mean to say you talk to me for educational purposes? What a beautiful bore!"

Dan did not contradict her. She was by no means free to him, nor was he the raw recruit his simplicity might give one to think. He had had his temptations and his way out of them was an easy one; for he was very slow to stir, and back of all was his ideal. The reality and power of this ideal Dan knew best at moments like these, but the Duchess of Breckwater was the most lovely woman—the most dangerous woman that had come his way. He liked her—Dan was well on the way to love.

The two were alone in the big dark room. At their side the small table, from which they had taken their tea together, stood with its empty cups and its silver. Without, the day was cold and windy, and the sunset threw along the panes a red reflection. The light fell on the Duchess of Breckwater, something like a veil—a crimson veil slipped over her face and breast. She looked toward Dan, and between them there was no more barrier than the western light. He felt his pulses beat and a tide rising within him. She was a delicious emanation, fragrant and near, and as he might have gathered a cluster of flowers, so in the next second he would have taken her in his arms, but from the other room just then Lady Galorey, at the piano, played a snatch from Mandalay, striking at once into the tune. The sound came suddenly, told them quickly some one was near, and the Duchess of Breckwater involuntarily moved back, and so knocked the small tray, jostled it, and it fell clattering to the floor.

THEY INJURE CHILDREN

Cathartics and Purgatives and Harsh Medicines May Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given. Ordinary pills, cathartics, and purgatives are too apt to do more harm than good. They sometimes cause griping, nausea, and distressing after-effects, and may actually injure the health, thus establishing a life-lasting annoyance.

We personally recommend and guarantee REXALL ORDORELLES as a safe and dependable remedy for constipation and associated bowel disorders. We have such faith in the virtues of this remedy that we set it on our guarantee of money back if your satisfaction where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge it at our risk.

REXALL ORDORELLES are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause drowsiness, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and adding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

REXALL ORDORELLES not only relieve constipation, but help to remove the cause of this ailment. They also frequently overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition.

There is really, in our opinion, no similar medicine so good as REXALL ORDORELLES for the purpose to which it is directed, especially for children, aged and delicate persons. They are prepared in tablet form and in two sizes of packages; 12 tablets, 10c., 25 tablets, 25c., and 50 tablets, 50c. Remember, you can obtain REXALL ORDORELLES in this community only at our store—The REXALL STORE, The Smith Drug Co., 14 W. Milwaukee St., Janesville, Wis.

RICH DOCTOR FREED BY CORONER'S JURY FROM MURDER CHARGE.

D. W. H. Falker who killed Emil Dignos in a vacant house.

Chicago.—Much mystery surrounds the killing of Emil Dignos, formerly a mechanic in the Moisant aviation camp. According to the finding of the coroner's jury, the doctor is blameless and shot Dignos in self defense after having been robbed by him. Sufficient mystery surrounds the case, however, to warrant additional investigation on charges brought by Mr. Hogan, with whom Dignos was rooming. According to the Falker story, he was called to the vacant house to treat an alleged invalid uncle of Dignos. When he entered the house, Dignos held him up at the point of a revolver and secured his watch and other valuables. At the first opportunity the doctor grappled with the overbearing, overpowering him and eventually abouting him is what is said to have been self defense.

Dr. Falker is a well known physician living in one of the finest residences on Drexel Road, and owning much real estate. Dignos is an Austrian by birth and according to those who know him, was of clean character.

There is alleged to have been secrets known by the mechanic which may throw some light on the investigation of the case.

Mother Was Right. Two children, aged about 6 and 8, wandered into the receiving ward at a London hospital. The elder handed the doctor in charge the following note from its mother: "They have awful cat. I think it is whooping cat. You wait a minute and hear them cat." She was right.

The Growth of Genius. The man who succeeds above his fellows is the one who, early in life, clearly discerns his object and toward that object habitually directs his powers. Even genius itself is but fine observation strengthened by fifty of purpose. Every man who observes vigilantly and resolves steadfastly grows unconsciously into genius.—Hulwer Lytton.

Market for Pleasure Craft. Dagnad and Baskorah are excellent prospective markets for motor boats and pleasure craft. The possible buyers, however, will pay no attention to catalogues, as they wish to sit in the boat itself, feel it go through the water and enjoy the noise made by the engine.

Suddenly Recovered Sight. After being blind for 11 years, Mr. Robert Holland of Sleekburn, Northumberland, England, has suddenly recovered his sight. He had been medically treated, but the doctors had given up all hope. Whilst walking with his wife he found he could see dimly, and on returning home discovered that his sight had been restored. THE BOY AT HOME.

In the midst of his greatest excitement and enjoyments there ought to be a steady and perceptible pull at his heartstrings in the direction of home; and there will be, unless there is something very much the matter with him or the home; and if the trouble is with him it probably began with the home. There was a welcome for him when he first took his place as a member of that family. That welcome must await him whenever he returns from work or play or school. If his arrival is greeted with complaints and nagging about what he has and has not done, he will make his arrival as late and his departure as early as possible; and he will take his permanent departure as speedily as his circumstance will permit.

He is a distinct part of the household and is entitled to a definite place where he can be monarch of all he surveys. He has as much right to a room, with decorations suited to his tastes, as his sister, even more so, for she has certain other home ties through which she may be satisfied and trained. His individuality requires an individual room and his social life needs a place where he can bring his friends; and his talents may be encouraged to develop. His stored up energies demand exercise and not every room in the house is suited to it. It is mighty comforting to him to know that there is one room where he is at home with himself.

He is also entitled to a position in the household as well as to a place in the house and his standing must be in their understanding. If he gets the right standing he is willing to do a lot of running, for the benefit of the family. It is not enough to say that he must work because some one else is the bread winner and he ought to be willing to do something. Another motive must be touched, that he is a part of the household and what he can do is of the highest value to itself. And so it is. Manual labor has mental and moral value; and when special talents are utilized it gives a special training for his life work. And when they are used in the equipment of the home, he derives a special reward from it. Drawing, the graphic arts, music, modeling, writing, reading aloud, reciting—these may have a productive place in his home life. He has to be allowed to be his own self and do what he can do. When Tom's mother and Joe's mother brag, each on the other's boy and nag each her own, each one is unworthy of her boy.

That standing is not at the center nor is it sitting on the throne, but by the side or under the wing of the head of the home. He is a boy, but only a boy. He holds the future, but must be held, at present. He is not to be a prize, an overfed pet; nor a pig, overfed pork; nor a despot, an overindulged dependent. He is not the center about which the family revolves nor a despot adapting it to his caprices. When a boy rules the home he ruins himself. He is to be adjusted to the family life and not the reverse. He may be a born ruler, but is to be under regents till he comes into his own inheritance and thereby learns how to rule.

But, in that subordination, he is entitled to find respect for his personality, his talents, his individual tastes, his elemental and God-given right of choice, on the proper exercise of which his efficiency in life depends. Even from the start, his will must not be over ridden, but stimulated and steered. If there is a clash between his will and that of the household head, all that the latter can do is to set forth the penalty of the wrong choice, let him have all the facts of the case before him in the decision, let him know that the penalties cannot be escaped. The plans for him must be positive, constructive, optimistic, sympathetic; not negative nor destructive nor gloomy nor autocratic. These plans are adapted to him and adapt him to the home people. He and his pa can do team work, as he assists with manual or mental or mechanical labor—with typewriter or at bookkeeping or garden making or farming. And yet, often must obedience be exacted of him, without explanation or option, and he must know what that authority means. Ordinarily, when his sense of partnership with his parents has been intelligently and practically nurtured, he gets discipline and delight, efficiency and satisfaction, out of it. It is a whole university in embryo, with technology thrown in. Even the care of pets is of great importance in teaching him gentleness and unselfishness and sense of responsibility. They make use of the whole boy in that way. His imagination comes to the aid of the family. To call a boy good for nothing and lazy, just because he dreams, is a degradation of the one who says it. To accuse him of doing wrong is to suggest to his imagination that form of wrong doing.

He must be trusted and have the exhilarating sense of it, as they trusted the boys at Rugby. He must find in the spirit of the home makers the spirit into which he will grow, more and more. He must find knowledge of delicate things in a way that will not excite unwholesome curiosity. He must be filled with admiring love for the home makers and take his place by their side in love for the Father of them all.

ADVANTAGEOUS TO LOCAL BAKERIES

Recent Ruling by the Railroad Rate Commission Helps Bakeries in This City.

The large wholesale bakery firm of Robinson & Lane, and the Colvin Baking company in this city received a communication a short time ago from their attorney, who represented them at a recent hearing before the Commission, to the effect that hereafter the prices charged by the express companies at the present time would be the same whether or not the shipments made were all of one kind or whether they consisted of mixed shipments, as most of the shipments made from these establishments are.

Some time ago the representatives of the Wells-Fargo, the American, the United States and the Western Express companies met with the representatives of the four largest bakeries in this state, namely, Collins and The Atlas of Milwaukee, and Robinson & Lane and the Colvin Baking company of this city, before the Railroad Rate Commission to hear both sides of the question and in that way decide just what to do.

The representative of Robinson & Lane showed the Commission the report of shipments made from their establishment and in this report it was found that of all mixed shipments made, only 13 per cent of all goods shipped were comprised of cakes, pies, etc., and the balance was bread. As the yearly express bill of such a firm as this reaches very near the $10,000 mark each year, it means quite a saving under the new ruling handed down by the Commission. With the rates formerly charged they were compelled to pay from 20 to 25 per cent higher rates.

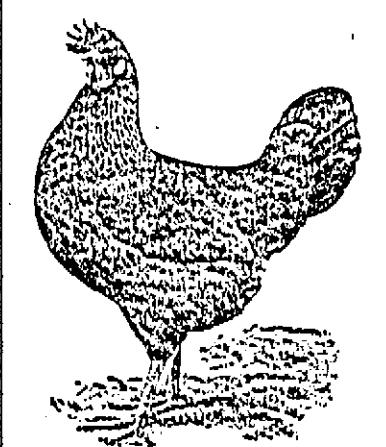

The law regarding the higher rates on cakes, etc., has been in effect since February 1st this year and under the new law, all increased charges that the companies have paid since that time must be refunded them by the express companies upon their showing the receipted express bills for the express companies' refusal to refund, proof of those excess payments can be made before the commission, who will make it their duty to see that the shipper receives the proper distribution. The full decision is contained in about eighteen pages of typewritten matter and at all times throughout the ruling, favors the bakers.

Considering the large amount of territory covered by our local bakeries here and the amount of business transacted with the express companies every month, it will mean a saving of no small sum, which in a year would reach proportions that would astonish the most skeptic, amounting to a small sized fortune.

BROWN LEGHORN IS SUPERIOR

Has Ability to Convert Larger Quantity of Waste Food into Eggs Than Any Other Bird.

Whoever wants a dainty fowl beautifully colored, a good forager and a great layer can very easily have the Brown Leghorn, says the Poultry Journal. Like its cousins the White, the Black and various other varieties of the Leghorn family, this fowl has the ability to convert a larger quantity of waste food into a larger number of eggs of large size than perhaps any other breed of fowls. It is eminently the fowl for the man who wants large numbers of white-shelled eggs and who does not want to be bothered with hens that needs must sit every now and then.

well set in the ground—two or more inches according to the length of the tank.

TO BUILD FATTENING CRATE

Usually Divided into Three Compartments, Each Holding From Four to Six Birds.

Fattening crates are usually made six feet long, 18 to 20 inches high and 18 inches wide. The crate is divided into three compartments, each holding from four to six birds, according to the size of the chicken. The crate is made of slats usually one and a half inches wide by five-eighths inch thick. These in front are placed two inches apart to allow the birds to put their heads through for feeding. The slats on the bottom are placed three-fourths of an inch apart allowing the droppings to go through. Care should be taken not to have the first bottom slat at the back fit too closely against the back, or the droppings will collect and decompose. The slats on the bottom should be one inch by one-half inch, and run lengthwise of the crate. The slats on the back and top are usually two inches apart. A frame is made of one and one-half inch by one inch.

Very fair coops may be made from old packing boxes by taking off the front and bottom and substituting slats in their places. During warm weather these crates may be placed out of doors.

Good Hatches.

A very important item in getting good hatches is to thoroughly test out the infertile eggs. Excellent egg testers, with instructions as to use, are furnished with most incubators. These testers can be placed on an ordinary lamp, and the eggs are held to the light when the room is dark. I consider the sixth day of incubation the best time for the first testing, says a writer in an exchange. A good, strong germ has the appearance of a spider in the egg. A blood circle adhering to the shell denotes a dead germ; a perfectly clear, as well as a cloudy, egg, is infertile, and should be removed from the incubator. These discarded eggs can be saved and boiled to feed the young chicks or they may be used for cooking purposes. I have always found it a good plan to retest the eggs again about the fourteenth day, and while some do not think this really necessary, I think it a good plan.

Oats for Hens.

A bundle of unthrashed wheat or oats is a good thing for the hens to work over.

Special Privilege.

"Isn't it against the law to be loud and boisterous in the street?" "It is," replied Mr. Cluggins, "unless you do so with a mechanical screamer attached to a motor car."

COMMON SENSE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism has for ages been a puzzle to the doctors. Some claim it to be an infection, a germ disease. Others claim that the cause is uric acid, a kidney disease. It is said that uric acid is carried by the blood into the small apertures of the joints and skin where it crystallizes and it is the small, sharp crystals that cause intense pain with every motion of the body by cutting into the flesh and nerves. Whatever the cause, the best relief known is an Alkaline Elixer of the Sallaylates. The chemical nature of the Sallaylates is to form soluble compounds with the urates. In this way these crystals are dissolved, taken up by the blood and taken out of the body by the kidneys.

This rheumatic elixer is taken in teaspoonful doses in hot water before meals. The cure is often in a day or two, yet the remedy should be taken for some time to thoroughly neutralize the blood and prevent a recurrence of the trouble. The eliminations, as the doctors would say, that is the kidneys and the bowels, should be kept active. Rheumatic Elixer is compounded by Mr. McNeill, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, who would be pleased to give you any other information you wish. Sold at 50c.
